

Matt assists regional and national businesses and investors with matters ranging from mergers and acquisitions, business entity formation and organization, restructuring, and reorganizations.

He represents business entities in negotiating contract terms and preparation of standard and unique agreements including personal guaranties, leases, license agreements and assignments, necessary in addressing daily operational challenges. Matt also has experience working with professional corporations, similar business entities, and individuals with professional licensing matters and related relationships.

While in law school, Matt was a summer law clerk for the Hon. Charles J. Siragusa of the U.S. District Court, Western District of New York and he interned for Justice Matthew A. Rosenbaum in the New York Supreme Court, Commercial Division.

In addition, before attending law school, Matt was a land surveyor at Erdman Anthony where he planned and directed a team in completing intricate projects for national and multi-national organizations, many of which won national and international awards for outstanding quality of work and advancement of technology.
